Even if you didn't have any skills, you'll have to invest thousands of dollars in equipment to get started. Thankfully, the technology bought those costs down. Today, you can learn DJs for a few dollars even for free! The following apps will help improve your DJ skills- whether you want to do it individually or professionally. Djai Djai is one of the most popular and recognized DJ apps. Its interface is similar to a physical deck, and you can work with two tracks at a time. For music, you can use music stored on your phone or tablet or use music from Spotify. You'll need a premium Spotify subscription to work and you'll need to connect to the Internet, even if you've saved offline music with Spotify. The app is straightforward for beginners to use and design. If you've never used the DJ app before, Djai is the place to start. See DJY on the Google Play Store and iOS App Store. DJ Studio 5 DJ Studio 5 is a fantastic, Android only DJ app aimed at beginners and intermediate enthusiasts. You get eight sound effects, a three band equalizer, ten customizable sample pads, one q-point per deck and a lot of other features that make it a well-rounded experience. DJ Studio 5's developers claim that the app has no limits and most of the app's features are completely free-unlike other apps. They only claim to make their money from the premium skins they provide as in-app purchases. You can also disable ads in the free version. You'll find DJ Studio 5 only on the Google Play store. Edjing Mix Edjing Mix is a pro-level DJ app designed for personal and professional use. The app is well designed with a lot of DJ features and support for your local library, dizer, soundcloud and even cloud storage services like Google Drive. However, there is a catch. Not all features of the app are free- but the price is reasonable keeping in mind the features of the app. If you're a professional DJ or looking to become one in the future, you should consider the Edjing Pro app ($8.99) because There are more features for professionals. The adjing mix is available on the Google Play Store and the iOS App Store. Music Maker Jam Music Music Jam is another popular DJ app with a focus on music creation. It's designed for hobbyists and has a lot of features for mixing music and creating beats using in-app devices. You can also record vocals and add effects to the music you create. Plenty of sound packs are also included. With the most free DJ apps, there are many features you need to pay for and they can be expensive. But, if you're just getting started, the free features are more than enough. You can find music maker jam on the Android App Store and iOS App Store. Cross DJ Cross is a powerful DJ app by DJ Mixwibs, a professional DJ software maker. This is one of the few apps that is cross-platform and available for Windows, Mac, iOS and Android. Desktop apps are professional-grade and have many features including compatibility with external hardware. Mobile apps, on the other hand, offer features like accurate BPM detection, beat-grid editing, track syncing, pitch bending. If you have decent skills, you can buy additional features like auto mixer, external mixer and sample pack as an in-app purchase. Cross DJ is not the cheapest software, but it has the most advanced features. If you're a beginner, you don't have to spend money on it; Free apps have more than enough features to get you started.
